Sambongi Dormitory is very close to the Nisshin campus and Komenoki Station, making it very convenient to commute to school. I usually use the bus to get to school and sometimes walk. On weekdays, I get up early in the morning to do case preparation and assignments, and on weekends I go out with friends or go shopping. At first it was difficult living alone for the first time, but now I am able to enjoy my student life.

| Jessica, India

Living in the international dormitory is supported by the NUCB student dormitory scholarship and utilities are also fixed, so you can save money. Also, since the rooms are completely private, I can live freely and spend my time cooking and reading books. While I have my own private space, I also enjoy being able to casually meet my friends at nearby stores.

| Thomas, France

The Sanbongi Campus is equipped with furniture and appliances, and my rent is subsidized by a scholarship making it very affordable. Although you will be living alone, you will be surrounded by your classmates and friends, so you will feel connected. My friends and I commute to school together and often go out together which strengthens our bond. I have made friends from all over the world which I am so happy for.

I believe that the International Baccalaureate (IB) has been immensely helpful in preparing me for the case method. It has trained me on what to focus on when reading a case study and has provided me with experience in structuring my comments in class, leading to intriguing case discussions.

One of my favorite classes at NUCB has been Design Thinking with Professor Goi. It allowed me to explore my creative side as we conceptualized a project from scratch. I also thoroughly enjoyed working with my group and receiving feedback from the advisors who judged our final product.
